Hudson International Talent

Looking for talent further afield

What if you could look for talent further afield?

For highly specialised skills, talent is often not available in local markets. Uniquely, Hudson has pre-qualified international candidates who are keen to consider the right international opportunity.

Key Benefits

An un-paralleled solution to tackle talent shortages.
Hudson international talent:

- Broadens your horizons with wide access to professional talent.
- Gives you access to specialised talent through Hudson's practice groups.
- Saves you time through quick access to pre-qualified international candidates.
- No need to engage with multiple local recruitment firms.

"Hudson supports us with pan-European search for some of our core positions that Tetra Pak needs to recruit for on an international basis. The labour market is becoming more global every day, and Tetra Pak wants to meet our customers' needs. Hudson helps us achieve this, with their international talent sourcing."

How does it work?

Hudson leverages its international network and 1.5 million and growing candidate database to give you access to international candidates interested in considering a position abroad.

When a role is particularly difficult to fill in your local market or when you aim for a more international talent mix within your organisation, international sourcing can provide the solution.

Based on your brief and specific needs, Hudson will work with you and propose a recruitment strategy to find the right international talent.

Our global network, extensive pre-qualified database and bespoke profiling tools will help you find the ideal international match quicker than any other recruitment firm.

If you are after a global network with one of the largest sources of talent, you have come to the right place.
